EUROPAEUM BURSARIES, PROGRAMMES & ACTIVITIES

Classics Colloquium, Munich 26-28 October

'Mutatas dicere formas' - Multimedia transformations in and of antiquity. Myths, history, philosophy, poems and paintings – they all come to us by way of a medium. There is no content without a medium of presentation, and the two, interwoven as they are, constitute, shape and transform each other. This year's Europaeum Classics Colloquium will explore the interrelations of central cultural patterns of Greek and Roman antiquity and their presentation in various media throughout the ages.

Application deadline 10 August <https://europaeum.org/opportunities-2/apply-for-a-europaeum-event/>

Workshop 'Democracy, indigenous rights and ethno-racial mobilisation: Latin America in comparative perspective', Geneva 6 October

The Europaeum are looking to recruit five graduates from their member universities for this event. Paper proposals invited.

This workshop aims to discuss the potentials and limits of these ethno-racial movements in contemporary Latin America, where historically high levels of inequality are coupled with unstable global commodity economies and growing threats to democracy. To do so, the workshop welcomes studies of these movements in Latin America, as well as perspectives from other regions that might afford comparative insights into the relationship between ethno-racial movements and populism on the one hand, and extractive and non-extractive political economies of inequality on the other.

Application deadline 20 August. More details and how to apply: <https://europaeum.org/opportunities-2/apply-for-a-europaeum-event/>

Helsinki Summer School (27 Aug - 1 Sep)

Applications for this event have now closed

'The Future of Work' explores the changing nature of work, pressures on the welfare state, education systems and public finances in the future. How will the welfare state be maintained with a narrowing tax base? With changes in work itself, what will happen to work-related benefits and income transfers? What forms of income transfers and subsidies will be needed in the new world of fragmented work? What policies and ideas will work in the changing world of work in the future? What will be the meaning of work for individuals and societies? more info

Workshop in Krakow, 22-24 November 'External and Internal Challenges to European Integration' More details on our website shortly!

Europaeum Scholars Module 3

Our latest Scholars module took place in beautiful Geneva, where we were looked after extremely well by our colleagues at the Graduate Institute. Sessions included practicals on multilateral negotiating skills, and professional report writing. There was a visit to the UN and WTO, with talks and Q&As. Much food for thought was provided by a pre-dinner talk by Mr Francis Gurry, the Director General of WIPO who talked about the many challenges the world is and will be facing, mostly but not exclusively from the rapid development of technology.

LMU have published an article on our Europaeum Scholars Programme: <https://www.en.uni-muenchen.de/news/newsarchiv/2018/europaeum.html>

FEATURED

This is the breathtaking library at UPF in Barcelona! Originally a water tank (built in 1874, with structural calculations by Gaudi) to feed the waterfalls of the Ciutadella, it had many different uses over the last 100 years: an old people's home, storage for the fire brigade, and police car park. The university acquired the building in 1992 to create a stunning workspace for students.
